License to Publish Agreement

In order to publish your article, we need your agreement in writing. Please take a moment to read the terms of this license, sign the form, and return it to us to keep on file.

By signing this form, you (the author) agree to grant to us (the publisher) non-exclusive rights both to reproduce and/or distribute your article(s) ourselves throughout the world in printed, electronic, or any other medium, and in turn to authorize others to do the same. You agree that we may publish your article in the Council on Botanical and Horticultural Libraries (CBHL) Newsletter and that we may distribute it within the journal, on its own, or with other related material.

You promise that the article is your original work. If it contains material that is someone else's copyright, you promise that you have obtained the unrestricted permission of the copyright owner (please attach evidence of this) and that the material is clearly identified and acknowledged within the text. You also promise that the article does not, to the best of your knowledge, contain anything that is libelous, illegal, or infringes anyone's copyright or other rights.

CBHL promises that it will respect your rights as the author. That is, the CBHL Publications Committee will make sure that your name is always clearly associated with the article, and the editor will not make any substantial change to your article without consulting you. When the article is accepted, the committee agrees to publish it as soon as possible, usually in the next scheduled issue. If it is rejected, this agreement is automatically cancelled and all the rights come back to you. CBHL will take all reasonable steps to maximize the visibility of the journal, and of your article within it.

Copyright remains yours, and CBHL will acknowledge this in the copyright line which appears on your article. However, you authorize us to act on your behalf to defend your copyright if anyone should infringe it, and to retain half of any damages awarded, after deducting our costs. You also retain the right to use your own article (provided you give full acknowledgement of the published original) as follows, as long as this does not conflict with business of CBHL: for the internal educational or other purposes of your own institution or company including an institutional repository; mounted on your personal web page; or in whole or in part, as the basis for your own further publications or spoken presentations.
